

The 2nd Annual Joint Threat Anticipation Center Workshop Conference Report

April 3-5, 2006 - What Are National Security Threats?

For presenter bios, audio recordings, and PowerPoint presentations, visit <http://jtac.uchicago.edu/conferences/06/>

Day 2- April 4, 2006

Welcome - Kathy Morrison, Director, Center for International Studies/Professor of Anthropology, The University of Chicago and Charles Macal, Director, Center for Complex Adaptive Agent Systems Simulation, Argonne National Laboratory

In a welcome statement, Morrison and Macal discussed the workshop's objectives and provided a brief overview of the Joint Threat Anticipation Center's goals, history, and ongoing and upcoming efforts. The overview included an explanation of the graduate research initiative, its information-sharing efforts (web site, mailing list), the student and faculty research efforts, and Argonne's work on validation and verification of computational social science modeling.